

ALL WAITERS TO STRIKE IF HOTELS HELP THE BELMONT

Waiters' Union Takes Up Fight and Demands General Recall of Fine System.

OTHERS LEAVE BELMONT

Hotel Says Staff Is Filled, but Waiters Submit Demands That Pearl Be Replaced.

Notice was served to-day on the managers of all the principal hotels and restaurants by the International Hotel Workers' Protective Association that strikes will be declared against any of these hotels or restaurants which loan waiters to the management of the Hotel Belmont, where the strike of waiters is still on.

Although the association has only about 4,000 members in Manhattan and there are between 40,000 and 50,000 waiters, cooks, porters and bellboys in the territory some of the officials are talking about a general strike.

There is no doubt that waiters in the big hotels and restaurants, with few exceptions, are sick and tired of the system of fines prevalent in such places. It was the imposition of fines by Victor Pearl, maître d'hôtel at the Belmont, that led to the strike there.

The waiters charge that the fine system has become an instrument of graft. While they do not accuse Pearl of pocketing the fines he imposed, they do not hesitate to say that this practice is prevalent in some prominent public eating places.

A decided divergence of opinion exists as to the situation at the Hotel Belmont. The management stated to-day that the staff of waiters is filled and that there is no strike. The waiters declare that eighteen kitchen and restaurant employees, including three cooks, walked out this morning and that the union is taking in new members hourly.

TO SERVE FORMAL PROTEST AGAINST FINES IN ALL HOTELS.

A mass meeting of strikers and sympathizers has been called to assemble at Bryant Hall, Sixth avenue and Forty-second street, to-morrow night. This meeting will register a formal protest against the system of fines for trivial offenses and excessive fines in general and the protest will be served on the managers of all restaurants and hotels.

Organizers of the Industrial Workers of the World are hovering around the headquarters of the union of hotel workers. Hotel and restaurant managers say they do not fear a sympathetic strike, as it would be utterly impossible to get most of their established waiters away from their jobs with anything short of dynamite.

Manager Forge of the Belmont has failed to make any reply to the demands submitted to him by the striking waiters. The most important of these demands are that Pearl, the maître d'hôtel, be debarred from hiring and discharging waiters; that this function be turned over to the head waiter; that waiters be discharged for taking part in the May Day Parade; and that the system of fines be amended so that the management shall be the judge of the merit of fines.

METHODIST WOMEN WANT TO GET BACK INTO THE PULPIT.

Sort of a Suffragette Movement Disclosed by Introduction of a Memorial at Conference.

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., May 8.—Scores of memorials are pouring into the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. Most of them relate to the famous paragraph 200 of the church discipline, which prohibits dancing, card playing and kindred amusements. It is believed that the memorial will be presented at the present session to leave the question to the "conscience" of the individual member.

That there is a "suffragette movement" in the church has been shown by the introduction of a memorial which asks that women be licensed to preach. A number of years ago a rule was adopted forbidding the ordaining of a woman minister, but that the question of the question will be discussed at the present session.

Five bishops will probably be retired because of age by the conference. They are Bishops Warren, Moore, Cranston, Neeley and Smith. From ten to twelve new bishops will be created and new Episcopal residences will probably be designated in Cleveland, Pittsburgh, Kansas City, Helena and Los Angeles. Bishop Frank M. Bristol, now stationed in South America, will be assigned to the United States, and one of the new bishops sent to South America.

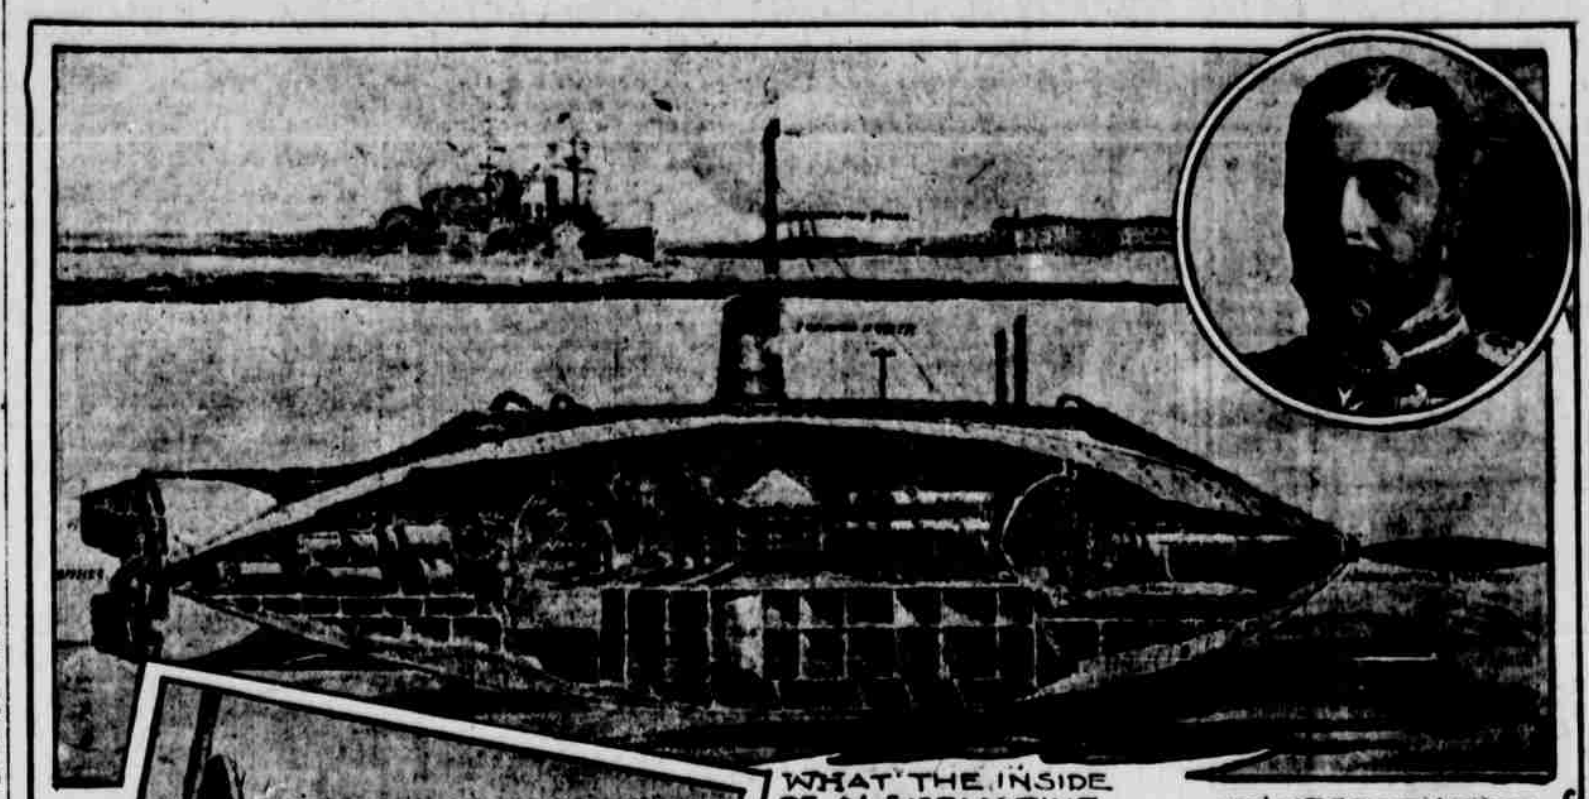

Bishops Beards and Lewis will be returned to China, while Bishop Burt and one of the new bishops will go to Europe. Bishop Burt will reside at Zurich, Switzerland, while the other bishop to be assigned will reside at Rome.

The office of General Secretary of the Epworth League and Editorship of the Epworth Herald will be combined. Dr. E. M. Randall of General Secretary conference is the general secretary of the League and Dr. S. J. Herborn of New York, editor of the Herald. One of these or both may lose their position by this action.

Temperamental Spitz Knows Nothing but Purest Parisian and Didn't Understand Maid.

If you happen to see a temperamental Spitz dog which looks as if it might bark with an accent and which was its tall with Gallic vivacity, please restore him to Mrs. Raymond Wilson of No. 214 West Fortieth street. Don't try to halt this remarkable dog with any more "Here, doggie," or even, "Kommen Sie hier, mein Hund."

You must say with your best accent: "Mon beau chien, s'il vous plait, venez a moi."

For though Bebe was born in New York three years ago, and has dwelt here ever since, save a few months she spent with her mistress in Paris, she understands not a word of English and will lie down, roll over, play dead, or say her prayers, only when requested to do so in the purest of Parisian French.

It was the advent of an unlettered colored maid into the home of Mrs. Wilson that caused the loss of her beloved pet. Monday night the lively animal became inspired with a desire to see something of this foreign city, and darted out of the door when the maid opened it.

"Come back here, you worthless pup," yelled Mandy, but she might as well have uttered a command in Greek for all it meant to Bebe, who disappeared around the corner.

Though greatly in despair over her loss, Mrs. Wilson says that once before a World "ad" caused the dog's return within twenty-four hours after she had taken French leave, and Mrs. Wilson confidently expects similar good fortune this time.

SHOPGIRLS CHASE THIEF OF SALESMAN'S SAMPLES.

Department Store Robber Caught After Long Pursuit in the Bronx.

For several weeks Detective Diggle of the Bronx Detective Bureau has been hunting about Third avenue department stores because of many complaints that sneak thieves have been making away with sample cases of visiting salesmen.

Moses Crystal, a cloak and suit salesman of No. 3 East Seventeenth street, entered the room of the buyer of the Adams & Flanagan store at Westchester and Third avenues to-day. He left two cases, containing samples, valued at $50, outside. When he came out to get them he saw a big, rough looking man making off down the stairs with one. The salesman shouted and the man ran. By the time the thief reached the street the store was in an uproar.

There was a long chase up Third avenue, in which dapper floorwalkers raced madly with trim girls in white shirt-waists and black skirts. Policeman Byrne joined the pursuit at One Hundred and Forty-second street and overhauled his man at Bryant avenue and One Hundred and Forty-ninth street.

Crystal was not in at the capture. After he saw the policeman start in the pursuit he went back to guard the case which had been left behind.

Detective Diggle was notified and took the prisoner, who said he was Harry Fisher of No. 64 West One Hundred and Thirtieth street, to Morrisania Court.

LYNCHING AND MERCY ARE BOTH SUGGESTED FOR CHILD FLOGGER

Justice Russell Receives 200 Letters on Punishment of Man Who Beat Boy.

Letters to Justice Russell of the Court of Special Sessions for and against Joseph Martin, a candy store keeper of West Twenty-ninth street, who is awaiting sentence for horse-whipping a four-year-old child, who annoyed him, continued to pour in to-day. Nearly 200, from all parts of the city, were received.

Most of the letters are strongly against the candy man. One or two go so far as to suggest a proper punishment would be an application of the "lynch law." Some say the man should be tied to a post and beaten with a whip—the same punishment that he inflicted upon the child.

John Thompson, who keeps a store at No. 410 Washington street, writes to Justice Russell as follows:

"If I were to judge Martin I would leave him to go free. I have suffered the same tormenting from youngsters as he. The mothers are the ones to blame. If they would look after their children such things would never happen. Good lectures should be given to such mothers as cannot take care of their children."

A letter signed "George Clark and John S. Edwards" suggests that Justice Russell have Martin chained to a post and beaten with a four-inch iron pipe instead of a whip.

A communication signed "Negro" reads:

"If Martin was a negro no Justice could have saved him from a mob. Nothing could have saved him from being lynched. My people have been mobbed and lynched for less."

"A Lover of Justice" writes: "In the old days a man that did anything like Martin did would have been strung up by the thumbs and then have a good lashing given him. That's what should be done with Martin. I feel it is my duty to express an opinion."

Many of the writers are women. The majority of them believe that no mercy whatever should be shown Martin. One who signs herself a "Soldier's Wife" writes: "Send that man out to Fort Hamilton. We will use him for a target, for he is nothing but a brute."

Another woman writes from No. 108 West One Hundred and Forty-fourth street: "Martin should be sent to the state pile and put to work maintaining roads. You should have no mercy for a man like that."

STRIKE SEEMS NEARLY OVER.

All the Chicago Papers Have Practically Full Crews.

CHICAGO, May 8.—Quiet reigned in the newspaper strike to-day and papers were sold under police guard in practically every part of the city.

A number of stereotypes who went out on a sympathetic strike after the pressmen walked out applied for reinstatement on two afternoon papers, and it is expected that others will follow their example in the near future.

The newspapers have practically full crews of pressmen and stereotypes at work, and more editions were published to-day than at any time since the beginning of the strike.

Why You Should Bathe Internally

Under our present mode of living, Nature, unassisted, cannot dispose of all the waste. This waste sends its poisons into the system, through the blood, circulation, and brings on countless ills.

That's the reason a Physician's first step in illness is to give a laxative.

Physicians generally, in order to stop this accumulation of waste, are now advising the use of the J. B. L. Cascadia.

WOMAN WHO TOOK TITANIC WAIFS NOT COUSIN, SAYS BOY

Rudolph Navratil Worried About Refuge of Children Who Await Mother's Arrival.

The disappearance of Lolo and Monon, waifs of the Titanic, who were taken from their fellow survivor and foster mother, Miss Margaret Hays of No. 304 West Eighty-third street, has left her inconsolable and has alarmed Rudolph Navratil, who says he is their first cousin. The children were taken yesterday afternoon by Supt. Walsh of the Children's Society.

"She was a very nice woman and not old," said Miss Hays. "She didn't speak English, so I didn't find out her name. Supt. Walsh assumed responsibility of letting her take the children."

Supt. Walsh stated that a cousin, a woman, took the waifs. Young Navratil says that there is no woman relative of the Navratil family in the United States except his mother and a sister in St. Paul, Minn.

"A photograph of this woman's mother, the children's aunt," said Supt. Walsh, "was shown to the children, and they at once recognized it as that of an aunt. Their cousin stipulated, as a condition of her guardianship, that her own and her family's name be suppressed."

"The children will be in New York again before the Oceanic, bearing the woman who says she is their mother, arrives. Meanwhile I am expecting complete advice from the Paris Children's Society, which is investigating for us. When this information comes the whole matter will be made public. It may be said, however, that the World's identification of the children as the sons of Mrs. Navratil of Nice was absolutely correct and of distinct service."

Navratil said to-day: "A week ago I learned that my two little cousins are the children saved from the Titanic. I consulted with my mother and went to the home of Mr. Hays. I talked with Mr. Walsh, who told me the children were better off where they were and requested that I leave them alone. Mr. Hays said he would not have them taken away from his daughter until their mother arrived."

"When I heard about a woman cousin taking them I was surprised. I know of no woman cousin. The children's father, my uncle, wrote us seldom and never told us he was married. I cannot understand the motive of Supt. Walsh in saying that a woman cousin took the children. There is none as far as I know."

Asked if he would attempt to recover the children, as their next of kin, Mr. Navratil said he would wait until the arrival of the woman who is said to be their mother.

MACHINE RECORDS AQUEDUCT BLASTS AS EARTHQUAKES

Now Busy Seismograph at Fordham University Has Lost Its Job.

IT'S IN ANANIAS CLUB.

Such a Fine Shake-Up in Xixotlclacala Only Machine's Fake, Professor Finds.

From now on, there's going to be a marked falling off in the earthquake market at Fordham University. A decidedly bearish movement was started with the last seismographic record of an earthquake in Afghanistan on Monday; and when that was followed by a double-barrelled twister in Xixotlclacala, Mexico and a Swiss movement stem-winder in Hakodate, Japan, yesterday, Prof. Riascher, in charge of the faithful seismograph, found himself short on spring earthquakes and considered putting himself and his seismograph into a voluntary receivership.

For the Professor and all of the enthusiastic earthquake speculators at Fordham awoke to the fact that there was a startling kinship between earthquake records and the blasts in the Ashokan aqueduct workings, two miles away. Now, they're wondering how many earthquake reports of disturbances on the other side of the globe can be attributed to the shots down in the hard rock 250 feet below the tree roots over in Van Cortlandt Park.

Jerome Park reservoir and along the line of Burnside and Aqueduct avenues. OH, THE WERE SO PROUD OF THAT MACHINE—BUT NOW!

So several dreams have been shattered in the laboratory at Fordham and students, who used to pause to cast a loving eye at the little pendulum of the seismograph, so artlessly tracing hieroglyphics of hidden earth secrets, are now disposed to cast the brick of scorn at their erstwhile darling.

To be sure, that seismograph had been the busiest thing about Fordham for the last six months. Not a day passed when the delicate pencil on the tip of the pendulum did not make its faithful scrawl on the record sheet.

There was not a night that did not produce some cause for the tremor, some where on the sphere. The good professor and his enthusiastic students began to believe their faithful little seismograph was one of the keenest instruments in the world.

It was a wonderful pastime—that puzzling over the tangled scrawl on the morning record sheet and with an attitude of hand and a pair of callipers stretching to scale over charts of far-away lands, to determine in advance of any cable story of disaster, just what barbarous peoples had felt the night of the earth's convulsions. During the six months just gone, there was hardly a spot on the earth's surface, from Darien to Nova Zembla, that hadn't been shaken by earthquake, according to Fordham's busy little seismograph.

But when that seismograph began to record shocks of seven and ten minutes duration, recently, the Fordham seismograph fans began to feel a horrid suspicion. Some began a quiet investigation and discovered that a whole lot of blasting was being done far down away from the sunlight in the aqueduct works a couple of miles away. One sharp was loud enough to learn the tremor when a particularly heavy blast would be set off under Van Cortlandt Park. Then he stood by the seismograph, watch in hand, at the appointed hour and, sure enough, there was an earthquake in the Straits of Sunda to the minute of the promised hour.

So now, they're going to chain up that seismograph and stamp a short and ugly word across its bland glass face.

ANY LITTLE GIRL THAT'S NICE LITTLE GIRL GETS FURSHAY

He Wants a Wife Out in Nebraska, So Get Busy Girls, Don't Wait!

It is with some measure of pride that The Evening World lays before young women of New York, anxious to marry, the plight and proposition of Charles Furshay of David City, Neb., a farmer and one of our subscribers. Mr. Furshay feels the influence of spring. He is lonely and wants a wife.

Any New York girl—she must be poor, economical, willing to work, white and not over twenty years old—who weds Mr. Furshay, and goes to live on his farm on Rural Free Delivery Route No. 2, out in Nebraska, may keep posted on what is going on in New York. Mr. Furshay says that if we get him a wife he will continue to take our paper for a long time.

We print herewith the brief, simple yet comprehensive outline of the yearnings and demands of Mr. Charles Furshay of David City, Neb. Aspirants to the position of queen of the household of Furshay are requested to communicate with him directly. The Evening

World simply sets his proposition forth and has no ambition in this other than to let nature take its course. Here is his letter:

David City, Neb., April 28.
Editor Evening World: I would like for you to do a kind thing for me, if you please.

I would like for you to find a wife for me, one that is good and kind. One that can keep house.

It must be a poor girl, one that is not afraid to work, one that knows economy. She must be 18-20 years old, five feet and 4 in. Any good white girl.

Dear friend, I take your paper, and I thought you would do this for me. If you do it free I will take your paper on for a long time.

Yours truly,
CHARLES FURSHAY.

Plain Facts About Your Corns

A corn is simply a lump of hardened skin, caused by friction of the shoe. The severe pain is caused by the pressure of this hard lump upon the sensitive nerves beneath. If you remove the pressure, you remove the pain.

A foolish and dangerous way to attempt to cure a corn is to use "plasters" or "cures" guaranteed to "cut" out your corns. Any chemical or drug strong enough to eat dead tissue is dangerous to live tissue. Many cases of blood poisoning have resulted from this practice.

Chiropodists treat corns by paring off this hardened skin, but most of them are expert enough to do it safely. Any one, however, man, woman or child, can shave off this hardened skin with the utmost ease and absolute safety by the use of ANTICOR, the Perfect Safety Corn Shaver, which can be purchased at any Drug Store, Department store, Hardware store, and almost any Haberdasher's, Barber shop, Stationery store, Shoe store, etc., for 25 cents.

This splendid little instrument is wonderfully simple in construction, impossible to get out of adjustment and so made that it is absolutely impossible for it to cut you. You will recognize all of this the instant you see it.

Don't continue to suffer the tortures of corns, when absolute and instant relief is in sight. Don't put powerful chemicals on your feet, when ANTICOR will instantly remove the hard center of your corn and stop the pain easily, comfortably and without the slightest risk.

Go to your nearest Dealer. They all recommend ANTICOR; so will your Doctor, if you ask him. Discard worthless "plasters," pastes, chemicals, etc., and just say to your dealer—
